UNDERTAKER USED CORPSE TO SMUGGLE DOPE

Corpses ore now used by underworld to stash heroin.

The dead body hid $50,000 in junk

When Pedro Velzer, 27, wes killed recantly in an auto accident a few milas from Guedelajare, Mexico, end his parents in Los Angeles requested his body returned to Celifornie, it seamed lika e stroke of luck to Selvatore Gova, 57, the martician in charge af shipping Velzer's body ta the States.

In fact, the idea hit Gova as he looked at the coffin in which the deceased would be shipped home.

You see, Salvatore Gova was not only an undertaker —he was a dealer in the traffic of dope—and the problem of getting half-a-million dollars in heroin across the border to associates in California was solved by the death of Velzer.

Gova, with the help of Angela, his wife, padded the bottom of the satin-lined coffin with the small bags of heroin. Then they gently lifted and placed the corpse of Velzer on top of the well-placed bags. Gova patted himself on the back for an idea that would win him praise from the "big boys" in the syndicate.

As soon as the body left Gova's funeral home in Guadalajara, Gova phoned his contacts in California saying "tbe bird seed is in the cage," or in uncoded words, "the heroin is in the coffin."

But when the coffin arrived at the railroad station at L.A. last week, fate stepped in to upset the "best-laid plans" of Salvatore Gova—the hearse transporting the coffin to a barn sixty miles from L A. collided with, of all things, a police car!

The impact hurled the hearse over, the coffin slid out, crashing to the street, its bottom ripped, small brown bags dropping from the bottom.

Narcotics agents summoned by police questioned the driver of the damaged hearse who escaped injury. Two hours later the driver, Anthony Cretella, 46, confessed that he was directed to take the Velzer coffin to a barn where the heroin bags would be removed before the body was taken to a Los Angeles funeral home.

And at Guadalajara, Mexico, a very sad, jailed Salvatore Gova faces a Mexican court where he faces several years in prison—for a clever idea that backfired.

Ex-Virgin At 11—Unwed Mother At 12—Unwilling Bride At 15

Carmelita Schiattarella of Naples, Italy must wait until sha is 15 before she can marry her boby's fother.

Carmela Schiattarella of Naples, Italy has experienced the greatest joy — end the greatest pain — e women can feel. She hes given birth ta e baby. Unfortunetely, Cermele is ona af the world's millions of unwed mothers. And sha can't even get marriad yet — she's taa young. Cermele is only 12 years old.

Under Italian law, Carmela must wait until she is 15 to marry the father of her child, 18-year-old Enrico Sabatini. But that same law has a twist to it: Not only must Carmela wait, but she must marry Enrico.

The little girl-mother apparently grew up pretty fast when she met the older Enrico. The amorous Italian boy wooed and won his grammar school sweetheart's love — and her virginity.

Maybe Enrico tbought that Carmelita was just juvenile enough, biologically speaking, to protect him from the danger of unexpected parenthood. If that's what he thought — tbat's what he thought!

The 12-year-old mother's mother was probably quite shocked when her little girl came home from grammar school and announced that the school nurse had pronounced her pregnant. But in Italy, where Catholicism is the national religion, abortions are strictly forbidden. And the civil and religious laws insist that the parents of illegitimate children marry.

The complications in Carmela's case evolve from the fact that another law forbids a female to marry before the ripe old age of 15. So, the court ruled that Carmela and Enrico must remain unhitched until 1968, at which time they must marry—each other—whether they want to or not.

Perhaps someday little Carmelita will write her memoirs. They should make a sizzling story: Ex-virgin at 11; unwed mother at 13; and unwilling bride at 15.

FATHER FINDS DAUGHTER IN BROTHEL

Frank Donovan found doughter was hooker.

"I wanted a woman—but not my own flesh and blood"

The vice squad of the Sarandi, Montana, police department got an unusual tip from a citizen last week. Frank Donovan, 45, called headquarters to report that he knew of a a house of prostitution operating in the city. "I want you to raid that sin den," Donovan reportedly said. "You've got to save my daughter . . . She's one of the girls."

Following up on Donovan's tip, the cops raided the address he gave them and pulled in three alleged prostitutes and the madam who ran the house. Just as the man had said, one of the girls arrested was his own daughter, Gail, 19.

Donovan said he had been suspicious of his pretty teenaged daughter's activities for several months, but had never imagined that she had sunk to he level a common prostitute.

Although he was unemployed, and could not afford to support himself or the girl, she always seemed to have plenty of money. Donovan also said she seldom came home until the early hours of the morning, especially on weekends.

Gail, a former high school beauty queen, told her daddy that she was doing some "free-lance modelling" at night. Although the story sounded fishy, Donovan, lacking proof of anything else, had to accept it. Anyway, his daughter was supporting him, too, with her myterious income, and he didn't want to look a gift horse in the mouth

But things came to a head last Friday night. Donovan, whose wife and Gail's mother had been dead for nearly three years, began to feel the urge for some sexual satisfaction. With a pocketful of the cash that Gail had given him, the middle-aged father set out in search of a hrothel.

A local bartender gave Donovan the address of a local play-for-pay palace and he made a beeline for it. When he arrived, the madam directed him to an upstairs bedroom where his filly for the night awaited.

Boiling over with lust, Donovan bolted up the stairs and, pausing for a moment before the door, he threw it open and was greeted with a shocking sight.

There, stretched out seductively on the rumpled bed, as naked as the day she was born, was his own little girl: Gail. The girl sat up and gasped in shame as her horrified father, his eyes brimming with tears, stumbled down the stairs and out into the street.

In a nearby phone booth, Frank Donovan did one of the most painful things a father can do: He snitched on his own daughter.

When he confronted the shamed girl later in police headquarters, Frank Donovan, still visibly shaken at learning first-hand that his daughter was a prostitute, took her in his arms and said:

"I'm sorry, but this is the only thing I can do. Maybe a few months in jail will teach you what I have failed to. Your body is a thing of beauty and should be saved for the man you love—not sold like a piece of garbage to whoever has the price."

Cops raided a brothel and nabbed Gail Donovan. They had been tipped off by Gail's father, Frank.

ENGLAND PROBES ARAB SLAVE MARKET

HOUSE OF LORDS
Extracts from Parliamentary Debate
Official Report Vol. 225 No. 104
5.43 p.m. VISCOUNT MAUGHAM

A friend of mine was attached to the Trucial Oman levies who in the autumns of 1955 captured the Buraimi Oasis from the Saudi Arabian forces . . . [illegible]

LONDON: Twentieth century slave traders with a lust for blood, beautiful women and young boys are spreading terror today in Beirut, Lebanon, and Saudi Arabia, holding kidnapped girls and women captive for sale in a booming slave market.

The "clearing house" for this marketing in human flesh is in Beirut and, afterwards, any of the hundreds of nomadic tent villages that dot the vast Sahara.

Slave market does exist

At first, the slave trade was thought to be fictional, dreamed up by lonely caravan men to ease their trek across the burning desert sands.

Recently, however, it has been officially established by testimony in England's House of Lords that the human slave market does exist, and that Arabia is its stronghold, a hideaway for harems of captive women, many of them British and European.

The white women in Beirut are usually taken on in the ports of Hamburg, Genoa, Naples, Marseilles, Glasgow and London by slave merchants who also deal in drug traffic. They are often young girls working in cafes. The traffickers investigate the past history of each girl, and if they find she is without parents or near relatives they approach her and offer her a lucrative contract with a cabaret, promising her "star" billing.

Given Drugs

With this promise of good money, the girl agrees, and is accordingly taken on in a cabaret or nightclub. But after a week, she is told that her performance does not come up to expectations. In her depression, she may take to stimulants—and the white powder which she is promised will give her new life is there, ready—cocaine.

In effect, the girl has no choice. Her "masters" then play an open hand—they tell her they will help her by placing her in a club with the agreement that she will "entertain" the clients. Her drug ration is suspended: if she wants more, she must become a slave.

She will be sold to the first wealthy Arab merchant, and her name will disappear from the register of European names: her doom is irrevocably sealed to its miserable conclusion.

Other more direct methods are used to capture young women for slavery.

Only a week ago, armed Taureg tribesmen swooped down on a touring car approaching the town of Jolo near the Buraimi oasis in Lebanon. According to confirmed reports, the Tauregs salughtered the male guide driver and took two young women prisoners. When it was learned that the captive women were British subjects, a land and air search was launched but was later abandoned without results.

Location not pinpointed

Although the actual location of the slave market's "clearing house" has not yet been pinpointed, it is real enough to have been brought up before the British House of Commons by a member of Parliament who believes the two Taureg-abducted Englishwomen are held captive there.

Exactly how many additional women of all nationalities may be prisoners is still anybody's guess — there have been too few eye-witness reports. But one of them —read recently before the British House of Lords by Viscount Maughan before a shock-hushed audience—contained the following testimony, taken from a former slave.

> "Slaves are often horribly abused for pleasure or mutilated as a punishment,and castration of young boys is practiced."
> From The Official House Of Lords Report

In the desert communities, as wealth derived from the sale of oil has increased, so has the demand for slaves—especially women. A man is respected in proportion to the number of women slaves he owns—and if they are attractive, he is almost revered.

With vice and the means to gratify unusual lusts unrestrained, the life of a slave girl is the worst existence imaginable. Sexually used and abused at the beck and call of her master, she must nevertheless also sell herself to other men, turning what money she earns over to her owner. If a child is born to the slave girl, that child is born into slavery.

As the slave girl grows older—as her body begins to deteriorate from the ravages of abuse—the price she is able to command for her outside the harem favors diminishes, and she is forced into even more depravity.

Life expectancy is short

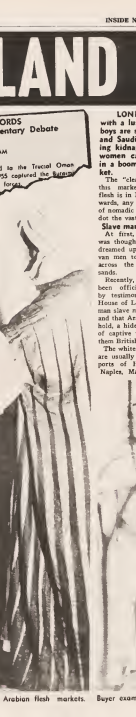

Later—sometimes in a matter of only two years—she has been so physically abused that she is deemed by her master sexually undesirable. When that happens, she is sent from the harem into the even more sordid tents of the common prostitutes. There she dies, usually of disease.

As accounts like the above filter back to the civilized world, attempts by various nations to probe the festering slave market of Saudi Arabia are gaining momentum. A private film unit has gone into the desert in an effort to more graphically record evidence of its cruelty and depravity.

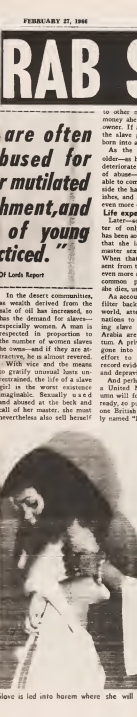

And perhaps one day soon, a United Nations task solution will follow, guns at the ready, to put an end to what one British official has aptly named "Hell On Earth."

Girls are sold just like cattle in Arabian flesh markets.

Buyer examines his "merchandise" before making deal

Slave is led into harem where she will spend her life.

Eurasian girl, Nora, was sold into slavery when she was only fourteen years old.

HER MOTHER SOLD HER FOR $10

Nora (picture above) was 14 years old when she was sold into slavery. She was born from the union of her mother, an Indian, and an Irish sailor. She has red hair and blue eyes and very fair skin. She was bought by a procurer and assigned to become a slave in Saudi Arabia. Her price was the highest obtainable. Now 27, she is still a slave in Saudi Arabia. She will probably die young.

Becouse he overlooked the ballpoint pen in o hood's pocket, the cop (obove) is dead.

Shoots Cop With A Ballpoint Pen

A midwestern police officer recently learned the hard day that the pen is mightier than the sword—especially when it's loaded with a .38 caliber bullet. The young rookie cop wes shot to deeth by a hood ermed with e brend new gimmick weepon: A pistol thet looks like e ball-point pen.

It's as lethal as a loaded .38!

The patrolman had cornered the hood, who was wanted in connection with a recent gang killing, and had given him a quick frisk, checking the contents of the suspect's pockets. He just glanced over the two ballpoint pens in the man's jacket pocket. As he made ready to handcuff his captive, the hood flicked out one of the "pens" and shot the officer through the head.

The cop died instantly but another officer who was arriving on the scene subdued the man. A check of the cop-killer's belongings showed that one of his pens wasn't a pen at all. It was a cleverly disguised pistol which turned out to be the murder weapon.

The incident provided U.S. police with their first hint of the new, fast-growing traffic in the innocent-looking, but deadly weapons. Since then, many more of the dummy pens that squirt death, instead of ink, have turned up.

Thrice dangerous because of their harmless appearance, the pen-pistols are finding great favor among criminals. The lethal devices can be carried openly, clipped to breast pocket or shirt front, without arousing suspicion.

A typical pen-pistol is built simply, but with the precision of a Swiss watch. The gun is made in two sections. The top, containing the firing assembly, unscrews from the lower part, which is the cartridge chamber and smooth bore barrel.

The devices come in three calibers—.22, .32 and .38. All sizes are loaded in the same manner. A cartridge is inserted into the chamber and then the two halves are screwed together. When cocked, the gun is fired by depressing the pocket clip, which serves as the trigger.

Almost anyone you pass on the street carries ball-point pens. It's impossible to look and tell which are harmless pens—and which are lethal dummies.

Police not familiar with the pen-pistols should bear in mind that the weapons are much heavier than the pens they resemble. The steel from which the former are made adds the weight.

If that midwestern rookie cop had been given this information, he might still be alive today. Because he didn't, he got written off permanently—by a .38 caliber ball-point pen.

The innocent oppearing ballpoint pen shown obove converts into o deadly weapon with o twist of the wrist.

OFFICE BOY PIMPED FOR BOSS'S SECRETARY

Steno Joyce Williams "moonlighted" as a prostitute.

Office boy, Billy Johnson had ambition. He "doubled" as a procurer.

After six she's all sex

When a Luzon, Idaho, detective visited the offices of a local corporation on a routine matter, he was impressed by the striking beauty of Joyce Williams, 21, secretary to the firm's president. The cop was even more impressed—shocked is more like it—when 18-year-old Billy Johnson, an office boy, sidled up to the plainclothesmen and said, "Looks good, doesn't she? Fifty bucks, and she's your for the night . . .

Joyce wound up being "his" alright—his prisoner, that is. And so did her teenaged office boy-procurer. After a couple of days of investigation, the detective moved in and busted them both for soliciting and engaging in prostitution.

Miss Williams, a former local beauty queen, pleaded guilty and received a six-month suspended sentence. Billy wasn't so lucky. The judge gave him two years in the reformatory.

The glamorous secretary-hooker told a reporter, "No, I'm not sorry for what I did. My boss was a skinflint . . . I had to make a living somehow . . ."

And when Billy, the enterprising office boy, approached her one day and told her how much the boss' clients ogled her, she got a money-making idea. She felt it would be "unladylike" for her to proposition the drooling males who came into the office. But why couldn't Billy make the pitch for her?

"Why not?" agreed Billy. And the money-hungry co-workers became partners in crime. While Billy, the office boy, propositioned likely customers, the curvy Gail went about her duties, typing and filing like a secretary should.

But when the six-o'clock whistle sounded, Joyce was through with work at the office and off to "work" in a nearby motel where the customers Billy had landed were waiting with baited breath—and bulging pockets.

But last Friday, the whistle sounded for the last time, and it wasn't the six-o'clock whistle. It was the whistle that Det. Sgt. O'Neal Brady blew on the pair after Billy cruised him by mistake.

When Joyce Williams, the fancy filly who moonlighted as a hooker, was asked if there was any romantic attachment between her and her office boy-pimp, she replied caustically:

"Are you kidding? He's just a dumb kid. As soon as I get off of probation, I'm going to New York to work."

"At what?" the reporter asked.

"At my profession, of course," she smiled.

Kissing Causes Cavities—Say Docs

Not candy kisses—kiss kisses?

Who says so? Dr. Dorian D. Zinner does. He and a group of U. of Miami dental technicians spent four years digging for the cause of tooth decay, and here's the sad story as the chopper-checkers see it.

Some of us carry cavity-causing bacteria in our mouths, and some of us don't. But those of us who do can spread them the same way we spread the common cold—by contact. And that, Charlie, is just what kissing is.

Candy? Sugar and spice and everything nice? According to the dental detectives, that stuff's merely what the cavity-crazy bacteria feed on, grow on and multiply on.

Logical conclusion—more bad news. Best way to keep from getting cavities: keep from kissing.

There's a ray of sunshine, though: best way to discover whether or not your lady love's been playing around behind your back. just count her cavities and see.

TV's "Man From U.N.C.L.E." in hot kissing scene. Isn't he afraid of tooth decay?

3 FOOT DWARF MARRIES 6 FOOT BEAUTY

Whet would heve heppened if Snow White had merried one of the Seven Dwerfs insteed of the hendsome Prince Chermning? A lot of children heve probebly wondered how thet feiry tele would heve ended if thet hed been the case.

The answer is to be found in real life. In England, Snow White did marry one of the Seven Dwarfs, and they had a child. And their marriage collapsed because their child was a dwarf.

Roy Smith, at 34, is only 2' 10" tall. He was stricken with dwarfism at the age of 7 and, as he grew older, he realized the misery that comes with living as a tiny human in a world of giants. The hig world can be very cruel to a dwarf, looking down on him, calling him a freak, a runt, a shrimp. shrimp.

The sad little man turned to drink and drugs to relieve the constant depression that haunted him. Then, a ray of sunshine hroke through the clouds of despair and hrightened Roy Smith's life with the light of love.

He had taken a part as Dopey in the stage production of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. Playing the lead role of Snow White was a beautiful, statuesque hrunette dancer, Patricia Lendrum (stage name, Patricia Kay), 24. Somehow, a spark of love hridged the gap between the 5' 10" dancer and the 2' 10" dwarf.

In Nocember of 1962, Roy and his beautiful, tall sweetheart were married. Snow White and Dopey had changed the ending of a fairy tale, and they lived happily—hut not ever after.

Soon, Pat hecame pregnant, and the couple shared the joyful anticipation of preparing for a hlessed addition to their strange family. But the laws of genetics don't follow the storyhook rules — and life doesn't always have a happy ending. Pat gave birth to a little girl. The baby turned out to be a dwarf.

Although Pat could overlook her husband's handicap, she apparently couldn't stand the idea of bearing and raising a dwarf. Like most women might, she dreamed of having a daughter who would grow up to be tall and beautiful, like herself.

Gradully, Pat and Roy grew farther apart. Then their marriage collapsed abruptly. Roy came home one day to find his beautiful wife gone. He was left with their dwarfed daughter, Karen. Karen.

Now, Roy Smith, the dwarf who changed a fairy tale, is back again in the real, cruel world, struggling to prepare his little girl for the hardships and misery that await her in the world of giants.

And Pat Kay, the Snow White who threw away the script and hore a dwarf's child, has returned to that world of giants to seek out a normal-sized Prince Charming with whom she might live happily ever after.

He-Man Peelers Instead Of Torso-Tossin' Strippers

HE DOFFS HIS PANTS

Latest Kick On The Runway

SHE DOFFS HER BRA

"Take it off!" the audianca shouts. "Taka it all off!"

There's nothing unusual about tha abova requast, which is tha battle cry wherever strippars parform, but what makes it naws is this: tha strippers are man — that's right, man—and the eager viawars ara women who fancy muscle men and the gay boys who gat a boot from a bulging bicap.

Where do these masculine strippers doff their duds? Well, it started (natch) in New York's mad, mad Greenwich Village, but now it has spread like wildfire to Chicago, New Orleans and San Francisco.

If you are a guy with all your hormones in the rigbt place, you may not understand this at all, but the newest wrinkle on the runway is Adonis-types like you see in the Charles Atlas ads, peeling jacket, necktie, shirt, trousers, undershirt and shorts.

These muscular gents don't take quite ALL off, of course, but only a cloth equivalent of a fig leaf leaves something to the imagination and the viewers get a pretty definite idea of the way the fellows stack up. It separates the men from the boys, you might say.

So, if you happen to be a muscular guy with delightful deltoids and beautiful biceps, this could be your big chance to break into show biz.

Divorces Wife Who Is Still A Virgin—After 5 Years

Whan Frank Myers, 37, was acceptad by his saxy, blonda swaatheart, Marion Colas, 25, in 1961, and the wedding data sat, he classad himself the luckiast guy living. He knew ha was marrying a virgin—so Frank sat on amotional pins and needles waiting for that honaymoon night—and the grand axparianca it would bring.

Marion Coles possessed a shape that would leave a wax museum in a melted heap.

As we said, Frank knew Marion was untouched—but come the wedding, and all that would be cleared up. Only things didn't work out—clear?

Last week in a divorce court, Frank, red-faced, revealed to Judge Harry Katz that his wife was "still a virgin—and that she never undressed down to the raw—in five years!"

Frank pointed out to the court, backed by his doctor, William Bennet, that Marion's refusal to sleep with or be touched by her husband has caused his health to suffer and his nerves are impaired.

Judge Katz called Marion to the stand. In a dress that clearly outlined a superb body, Marion arose and came to the stand.

At the request of Judge Katz, Marion said she gave a vow to her dying grandmother when she was 12 never to let a man see her naked—"or to let any man put his hands on my exclusive body areas." The "exclusive body areas" caused laugbter in the court, and the judge rapped for order.

When her testimony ended, Judge Katz shook his head.

"I can't accept the vow part of your testimony, Mrs Myers, and I surely can't accept the fact that you, as a married woman, refused to have any sexual affairs with your busband. I feel Mr. Myers was most unique in living with you for five years. I therefore grant Mr. Frank Myers a divorce on mental—and I will add, physical—cruelty . . ."

Frank Myers has learned that not all beautiful and sexy girls are nice to have around the house—some are duds.

LAS VEGAS SHOWGIRL SLASHED TO DEATH BY LESBIAN LOVER

By FRANK QUILL

Along Gambler's Row, the glittering Las Vegas Strip, she was known as the "show-girl who had everything" — including a tall, lush 38-23-37 body built for love that gleamed like milk-white marble when the spotlight slowly traveled from her upthrust, pink-tipped bare breasts down her sleek, curvy thighs.

But sex-goddess Carole Haines, 20, was doomed to die last week in horrible, blood-spattered agony far from Vegas' bright lights—slashed to crimson, gory ribbons by a knife in the frenzied hand of her jealous dope addict Lesbian lover in a cheap rooming house in Toads Corners, Ohio.

Web of sex and dope

Here's how police pieced together the tragic, sordid story of the beautiful young girl—caught in a hopeless web of drugs and illicit sex:

Carole was making $250 a week as a featured showgirl in a nude revue at one of Vegas' top gambling-and-sex emporiums — and the world seemed to be her oyster. Wealthy businessmen, high-rolling gamblers and hard-eyed mobsters from New York and the Mid-West all lusted after the raven-haired beauty who was seen nightly in the elaborately-staged production at the club, and who could also be seen lounging at poolside in a brief wisp of bikini during the long, hot desert afternoons.

But Carole's many charms didn't appeal to men alone.

A breezy, blonde Lesbian cocktail waitress who worked in the same club as Carole was also attracted to the young beauty—and she began a carefully-planned campaign to entice the beautiful but inexperienced young girl to become her sweetheart.

Met Lesbian at pool

The Lesbian, Donna Oakes, 32, now held in custody in Toads Corners on a murder rap, introduced herself to Carole one afternoon as the showgirl was sunning herself at the hotel pool.

Soon, the two girls became fast friends—and the worldly-wise Donna prevailed upon Carole to try "smoking a little tea" just for kicks. As time went on, the heartless Lesbian hooked her young prey on sniffing cocaine and "mainlining" "H"—the deadly drug of the confirmed addicts.

For a few weeks, Carole was able to keep on working — but her enslavement to heroin soon took its terrible toll. Drugs and illicit sex became her whole life. She had moved from the plush Vegas hotel where she worked into a motel room she shared with her Lesbian lover, who introduced her to strange joys of unnatural sex.

Quitting her job at the hotel's nightclub, Carole gave herself and her lush body wholly to lust—and the Lesbian reveled in her latest conquest.

When the season ended at Vegas, the two lovers headed East in the Lesbian's car. They wound up in Toads Corners—where Donna rose again found work as a cocktail waitress in a Near North Side restaurant and bar frequented by swingers.

Was a mainliner

Unable to work herself, Carole spent her time "mainlining" and hanging around the bar where Donna worked.

But her beauty still attracted men. A handsome, well-to-do businessman became her constant companion—while Lesbian Donna fumed and a slow envy and hatred grew in her warped mind.

Last week the violent passions that raged in the Lesbian's breast exploded in murder. Accusing Carole of "unfaithfulness" to her, and claiming the girl was a two-timing businessman, Donna repeatedly stabbed Carole with a carving knife into Carole's writhing body—and then, in a scene of gruesome horror, according to police reports, she slashed the beauty's dead form from head to foot in a maniacal frenzy.

Roomers in the cheap hotel where Donna and Carole cohabited, hearing the agonized screams of the ex-showgirl, called the cops.

But the young girl who might have risen to stardom in Las Vegas and Hollywood was dead when police arrived.

Taken into custody, the jealousy-maddened Lesbian freely admitted the crime and is now awaiting a sanity hearing in Toads Corners' criminal courts.

Regardless of the outcome of the sanity hearing, Donna Oakes will not be slashing Las Vegas showgirls anymore soon. She'll spend the rest of her lithe either in prison or a mental hospital.

Grandpa's Mistake Makes Man A Millionaire

Harold Griffin, 28, was going through the basement of his Columbus home recently, rummaging through relics of his family'past. One of those relics turned out to be worth $50,000 — and by there is more than $1-million.

Griffin's valuable find was an old, yellowed bankbook made out to his great-grandfather. The bankbook showed that great-grandpa had deposited $10,000 in an English bank way back in 1849. That was the same year of the great California gold rush.

Grandfather never struck gold, but he did meet a wealthy widow in San Francisco. He married her, settled down and reared a family.

But what about that 30 grand that granddaddy left in that English bank? Apparently he forgot about it or, since he was now independently wealthy, perhaps he just didn't give a damn about such a paltry sum. At any rate, he never got around to withdrawing the money.

For 116 years, that little

His grandfather's forgetfulness made Harold Griffin rich when bank honored his claim to forgotten cash.

bankbook was tucked away in the attic of the Griffin home. Harold was not one to quibble. He accepted the bank's congratulations and, last week, he received a certified note for the full amount.

Now Harold Griffin is back in his basement, sifting through every paper he can find. Who knows, he might find another fortune.

9-YEAR OLD NABBED PASSING COUNTERFEIT

The cops arrested a jobless widower yesterday after they learned that he had been using his innocent nine - year - old daughter to pass a phony five-dollar bills.

Felix Hammersmith, 38, was arrested after a cop asked his pretty, blue-eyed daughter to read him a bill a man who had given her a queer five-dollar bill.

"My daddy gave it to me to buy candy with," the little girl explained.

After they nabbed him the cops found that Hammersmith had been using nine-year-old Diane to pass as much as fifty dollars a day in phony five-dollar bills.

"She was a perfect front," he said. "Who would suspect a little girl like that of passing counterfeit?"

Hammersmith said he thought the wad of bogus fives after he got the idea of using his daughter to pass it. She accompanied him on his rounds and whenever he thought it likely one unusually a drug store—he gave Diane one of the fives and told her to buy some candy.

Diane got the candy but and her father got four gen-

Tattoos Can Save Your Life . . .

Vital medical information that could save many lives should be tattooed on human beings, according to Dr. Nils Aikens of Copenhagen, Denmark.

Some people, for example, are dangerously allergic to penicillin, others to aspirin. There is hardly a life-saving drug to which someone is not seriously allergic.

Diabetics deprived of insulin exhibit all the symptoms of drunkenness and many a diabetic in a state of coilepsy has been flung into jail as a disorderly drunk.

The tattoos suggested would be numbers or symbols that doctors and police would look out for and be able to read from a code book. The tattoo would not have to be larger than a penny and could be placed in some inconspicuous spot on the body—the same spot, naturally, for everyone.

The Greeks had a word for it, and it wasn't "unnatural." In those days a young man's fancy ran to a beautiful youth. A wife was for raising a family. A sexpot like Sappho the Lesbian, had her own ways. And there were flute girls and courtesans for other tastes and purposes.

HE WANTS SPICY SEX SHE WANTS A DIVORCE

Jock Green lost his wife becouse of his desire for woy out sex.

Judith Green knew oll obout the birds ond bees but she didn't know enough obout sex for hubby.

Judith Green, a young pretty bride of six months, recently sued for divorce from husband Jack Green, 39. Grounds for the action was "mental cruelty" and "strange sex acts committed by her mate."

Appearing before Judge Edith Ross, famed for her work with estranged couples, Judith explained tearfully that the actions of ber husband, in attempting to persuade her to indulge in 'new and exciting sex acts,' was making a nervous wreck out of her.

She felt she had grounds for 'extreme mental cruelty.' She wanted a divorce.

Judge Roes listened sympathetically and asked her to give an example of her husband's 'erotic actions.'

Reluctantly, Judith described a night in which she and her husband, Jack, had retired quite early. It was a chilly night outside and the pair were snug and cozy in their big double bed . . . Jack had been complaining about her schoolgirl innocence and wanted to teach her a thing or two about making a woman happy. This particular night he insisted on something a little 'different'—just for the fun of it. "I can't go into details," said Judith, "because they are too intimate. But I was so shocked and ashamed that I decided to leave him."

Further questioning brought out that Judith had been brought up by a strict family, perhaps too strict when it came to sex. She'd had no pre-marital sexual experience, knew almost nothing about married sex.

"Divorce not granted," said Judge Edith Ross.

Then the kindly magistrate explained that Jack Green's actions were not unusual.

"You're a big girl now," she told the surprised young girl gently. "You're married to a fine young man. In marriage, just about anything goes."

So, instead of a divorce, Judith got the name of a marriage counsellor.

His spirit was willing—his flesh was weak

DEMANDS MONEY BACK FROM CALL GIRL

It takes two to tango —and it also takes two to have fun in bed. That was Call-Girl Dixie Palmer's answer when one of her pay-for-play customers yelled for his money back after petering out in the pinch.

The angry client, Joe Grant, argued that he had laid out fifty clams for a romp in the hay, and that satisfaction should be guaranteed no matter what.

Dixie said it wasn't her fault he couldn't rise to the occasion, and to go chase himself. Instead, Joe started chasing her—and a wild hotel room scene ended up in the police station.

The whole fuss began when Grant, 50, checked into the hotel for a convention. He promptly made a phone call, and when Dixie, a tasty-looking 20-year-old, came hip-swinging into his [illegible], Joe paid her a $50 fee in advance.

And before you could say "Polly Adler" the pair were stripped for action. But there wasn't any action. It seems that middle-aged Joe's spirit was willing but his flesh was weak.

That's when Joe began bellowing futilely for his cash refund. When the dizzy chase spread to the hotel corridor, the cops were called and the tangling twosome were packed off to the police station.

Lady Wrestler Breaks Prowler's Back

Larry Wells, a husky professional second-story worker, burgled his way into the apartment of Teresa Lambert last night with every intention of getting an armload of loot.

All he got was a busted spine and a wheelchair for life.

Teresa Lambert, known in professional wrestling circles as "Terrible Tess," not only wrecked Larry's career: she also shattered his pride.

The husky youth, who took pridpe in tbe fact that he could lick any man in his own tought neighborhood, crawled from the fire-escape into Miss Lambert's apartment while the latter was getting dressed for the evening.

Instead of screaming for help at the sight of the intruder, the attractive scantily-dressed Miss Lambert gave the burglar a seductive smile.

Convinced by the smale that he could have the girl and the loot too, Larry advanced on Miss Lambert witb the confident strut of a rooster in a harnyard full of hens.

Teresa Lambert smiled and ber arms enfolded the frame of the husky lad.

A moment later there came a startled scream, the swishing sound a heavy body flying through the air, and an earth-shaking crash as Larry Wells struck the opposite wall.

Teresa, using a trick called the 'Flying Mare,' had thrown him clean across the room!

Larry Wells, his spine and several ribs broken in the fall, welcomed the arrival of the police.

Teresa Lambert bas no intentions of pressing charges and it's possible that a sympathetic judge might put him on probation.

But even if Larry goes scot free, you can bet he'll never tackle another lady wrestler.

Teresa Lambert in ring action.

I Like Old Men With Young Ideas

Model Lola Ludlow says she prefers older men because "they know how to show a girl a good time without making her work overtime for it."

The sexy, 22-year-old said that she has found that the gay, old dogs are so tired of doing tricks that "they're actually relieved if I don't go up to their apartment for a nightcap at the end of a date . . . After an evening of dining, dancing and making whoopee, the older guys are usually too pooped to pop. So, a sweet little peck on the cheek is enough to keep them satisfied . . ." Boys her own age are too eager, Lola says.

"Their idea of an enjoyable evening usually means buying a bottle and bouncing right into bed. Not so the old boys. They like to swing but they need their rest so they don't make a grab for my body when the evening is over. And that's just fine with me. I get enough exercise running down modelling assignments all day . . ."

PUSH-BUTTON RAPE TRAPS

Unattended, automatic elevators in the big apartment houses have been turned into death traps. Since automation has replaced the elevator operator, these closed cubicles that can so easily be stopped between floors, have taken a grim toll of lives. They have become favorite places of operation for murderers, perverts, rapists. And women and young girls are the prime victims.

Women are sitting ducks for sex mad degenerates in unattended elevators

A case in point was the brutal, sadistic and revolting rape-murder of attractive 31-year-old Clare Katz, in the basement of her luxury apartment house in Far Rockaway, Queens.

Her rapist-killer, 17-year-old Israel Jones, brutally beat and slashed her in an elevator between floors, then took the lift down to the basement where he muffled her screams with his hand, dragged her off into a corner, and raped her repeatedly.

Then, beating her over the head with a piece of lead pipe, he left her for dead and returned to the apartment of his foster-brother, building superintendent Frank Holmes, where he had lived since coming to New York from his native Georgia.

Later that night, Jones returned to the scene of the crime with the intention of disposing of the body.

Israel Jones took a penknife from his pocket, pulled out the blade and cut her throat.

Then, just to make sure she was dead this time, he 'stomped' on her stomach with heavy hoots.

Pushed button—Rode to bloody death

Clore Katz was raped and murdered in on elevator.

The night of horror and murder began when Israel Jones 'got bored' watching TV in his foster-brother's apartment in the building, and began riding the isolated push-button elevator because "I wanted a woman."

The 'woman' was pretty, red-haired Clare Katz.

She got on the elevator at the fourth floor, where she lived alone in a small apartment. As she reached for the 'lobby' button, Jones, lurking in the unattended elevator, made a lewd remark and grabbed her around the waist.

Miss Katz panicked and tried frantically to press the alarm buzzer. Before she could reach it, Israel Jones lashed out at her with a makeshift weapon, a short length of broomstick with a long, sharp nail driven through one end.

The sharp nail slashed open her cheek. She screamed but no one could hear her.

The youth struck out again. He hit her again and again, ripping her face, slashing her throat and breast. Then, throwing her to the floor, he pressed the button that took the elevator to the basement, and shut off Miss Katz's moans with a hand placed over her mouth.

When the elevator stopped at the basement level, he dragged her into a deserted corner, ripped her clothes from her body and raped her.

Lurked in elevator—Wanted a woman

Israel Jones hid in elevator to ravish and kill.

Detectives of the Far Rockaway police precinct, hardened though they are to crimes of violence, wept over the brutally mutilated body of the young, attractive victim.

The tragic fact is that Clare Katz will surely not be the last woman or girl to press the button and ride to her death on one of these unprotected automatic elevators — natural hiding place for the lurking sex psychopath, maniac rapist and murderer.

These sealed, silenced-off cubicles could not have been more ingeniously designed as death traps for the defenseless quarry of sex killers — muggers, perverts and sadistic marauders of every description.

If husbands only knew how much they are missing they would not wait another moment to read "Sex Life in Marriage." Many men (even those who have been married a long time) don't get half the delight because they don't know the knack of sexual intercourse!

WHO IS TO BLAME?

But this is not all. What of the wife? In all-too-many cases she is cheated out of her sex rights. The sex act becomes a one-sided affair. The husband thinks his wife is at fault. The wife thinks her husband is to blame. The marriage itself is in danger!

TELLS WHAT TO DO AND HOW

Actually both must learn exactly what to do before, during, and after sexual intercourse. In "Sex Life in Marriage," Dr. Oliver M. Butterfield gives detailed directions to both husband and wife.

Long plain words, this famous Marriage Counsellor tells what must be done, and what must not be done! The "Secrets" of sex life are clearly revealed, husband and wife fall in love anew—the home is held together! Worry and anxiety disappear.

Sex mastery replaces doubt. Married life becomes doubly delightful because the joys of marriage are shared by both!
